Larry Weinberg, director of Anoka's Rumriver Art Center, leads a free watercolor class during Ramsey's Elmcrest Art Fair July

"I want to be an artist when I grow up," a young girl sighed after showing Rumriver Art Center Director Larry Weinberg her watercolor painting during the second annual Elmcrest Art Fair July 15.

More than 40 artists had work for sale at the fair, and free classes and demonstrations entertained families all day long at the Ramsey park.

Food trucks helped keep art aficionados cool and hydrated in the summer sun.

The art fair is put on jointly by the city of Ramsey, Rumriver Art Center and Artists del Norte.
